

The New York Times

FOOD

Off the Menu

By FLORENCE FABRICANT JAN. 19, 2016

Opening

Le Boudoir Marie Antoinette is channeled in this hideaway lounge beneath Chez Moi from the restaurant's owners, Tarek Debira and Patricia Ageheim, and Ali Mardassi. Plush red upholstery, a ceiling that replicates the marquetry flooring at Versailles, gilded mirrors, sconces and rococo flourishes create an indulgent setting for cocktails by Franky Marshall, formerly of the Dead Rabbit. Plates of crispy frogs' legs, country pâté and truffled mushroom croquettes are served. For dessert, let them eat chocolate mousse, not cake: 135 Atlantic Avenue (Henry Street), Brooklyn Heights, 347-227-8337, chezmoiny.com.